“To Bring History into Accord with the Facts”

The Barnes Review Third Annual Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment was held in Washington at the Holiday Inn on Capitol Hill over the weekend of June 14 through 16.

There can be no doubt that it was the largest event of its kind, a public gathering drawing over 300 Revisionist historians and political analysts and their supporters.

Major names in the field such as E. Michael Jones, Juergen Graf, William Lind, Tom Goodrich and Ted Gunderson dealt with myriad topics from the corruption in academia to the holocaust to the brutality of the plains Indians to the events of Sept. 11.

Consistently, the audience, many of whom traveled from overseas to attend, voiced their approval with loud applause and numerous standing ovations.

The purpose of the conference was to provide a forum for dissenting scholars and journalists who are, more often than not, hounded and harassed by the regime.

These activists are harassed not because they are dangerous or violent—for the system monopolizes force—but because their ideas are subversive to the ruling class and their leftist pseudo-philosophical drivel.

In the TBR forum, these activists were able to compare notes, talk about strategy and share ideas. It was not about competition, but about cooperation.

An incredible number of topics were dealt with, and each topic was treated in a scholarly vein, but not such that it would soar over the heads of the participants.

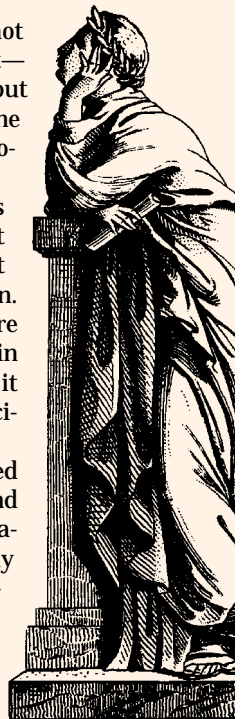

The notion was scholarship tempered with a concrete sense of activism and mission. These were not ivory tower academics whose arrogance is matched only by their irrelevance, but numerous persecuted men and women who have a powerful sense of mission. There are few like them in the contemporary scholarly world.

Each lecturer is a leader in his field. Each is controversial, but equally, each was without question an authority. Unlike many other gatherings of this sort, there was not the normal motley crew of “angry amateurs” whose bitterness is more apparent than scholarly accomplishment.

Like very few gatherings in the past, this one was making its bid to challenge the mainstream on its own scholarly turf rather than romanticizing separation and marginalization. In other words, we were dealing with professionals.

The only criticism heard was that the lecturers may have inundated guests with “information overload”—in other words, too much to absorb at once.

Still, when attendees were informally questioned during the conference whether they would attend a historical and free speech conference sponsored by THE BARNES REVIEW next year, the response was unanimous: they would attend again.

Turn inside for fascinating—authentic—history. The kind you can only get from THE BARNES REVIEW.

Experts Say 'State' of Israel a Fraud

Fifty years of bloodshed and ethnic cleansing—genocide—brought three critics of the state of Israel to The Barnes Review International Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment.

The Barnes Review's Third International Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment commenced June 14 with a series of revealing lectures on the bloody history of Israel.

If your only source of news comes from Establishment newspapers such as The New York Times or the local evening news, you would most likely be surprised to realize that, throughout history, many Jews have been strident opponents of the creation of Israel.

Famed civil libertarian attorney, Mark Lane, one of America's most outspoken Jewish critics of the Mideast state, led off by discussing the topic of "Jews and Zionism" by way of introducing the first featured speaker, Rabbi Yisroel D. Weiss, a leader of the anti-Zionist Orthodox Jewish organization based out of New York known as Neturei Karta.

In a passionate speech before an attentive audience, Rabbi Weiss spoke on the topic, "The Zionist Criminal

State in Israel," noting that the creation of Israel by force, apart from God's will, constitutes blasphemy and heresy, to wit:

The Holy Land was a conditional Divine gift. It was a place set aside for God's worship. But it was given to the Jewish people conditionally. The Bible foretold that if the "children of Israel" should fail in their spiritual task, they would be banished from the land and sent into exile. . . .

Zionism rejects all the above. It insists that exile is purely a physical state, caused by military and physical weakness. The movement called upon the Jewish people to end exile by force of arms. It waged war, first against the British, then against the Palestinians.

In simple terms, if one views the exile as the result of military cause and effect, then the very heart and soul is ripped out of Jewish destiny and Divine guidance . . . To refute the fact, that all reward and punishment to every individual is from God and to refute God's constant supervision, to ignore this and contend that our punishments are due to physical weakness, is blasphemous and heretical. . . .

[Neturei Karta seeks] to promote goodwill between Jewry and all mankind. The philosophy of Zionism encourages Jews to lord over all non-Jews. This results in endless Jewish confrontations with all people. . . . Ironically, the Zionist state was supposedly created to protect Jews from anti-Semitism, yet they are the greatest and main creator of anti-Semitism worldwide.

The third lecturer, Dr. Issa Nakleh, the senior Arab diplomat on American soil and longtime representative of the Arab Higher Committee for Palestine, came from the Palestinian point of view. Nakleh, by the way, is a Christian.

Dr. Nakleh provided a damning address on Israeli crimes against the Palestinian people, including wanton, despicable assaults on Palestinian elderly and children, since the Zionist state was founded more than 50 years ago. ❖

THE 9-11 LECTURES

Tough Questions Asked, Answered on 9-11 Attacks

"Who knew what and when," in regard to the Sept. 11 terror attacks was the topic at a panel discussion, titled "Authentic History of 9-11."

Sept. 11, the day three commercial jetliners slammed into the World Trade Tower buildings and the Pentagon, will forever be etched in Americans' hearts and minds.

Now, it's been more than nine months since that terrible day, yet there has been no public, independent probe of what happened and the events that led up to it.

A lively panel discussion focusing on 9-11—specifically who knew what and when—chaired by former high-ranking FBI official Ted L. Gunderson, was the first topic of the afternoon of June 14 at The Barnes Review's Third International Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment. Speakers included:

- American Free Press's European correspondent Christopher Bollyn, whose pioneering investigative journalism has cast doubt on the government's conclusions and shed light on vital issues related to 9-11 such as the burgeoning war on terror and declining American rights;

- Author and independent researcher Garland Favorito, who outlined evidence suggesting that there had to be foreknowledge in high places of the impending attacks;

- Veteran populist writer Eustace Mullins, who pointed a finger directly at Israel's intelligence agency, the Mossad, accusing that service of being the ultimate mastermind behind 9-11 to put the blame on Israel's enemies in the Middle East and stir up American support for war against Arab states;

- AFP managing editor Christopher J. Petherick, who provided an overview of AFP's coverage, and read the congressional testimony of Dr. Gene Worley, the lead investigator called in by government officials to analyze the bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah building in Oklahoma City who is now also heading the official probe of the collapse of the World Trade Towers; and

- Former Air Force explosives expert Gen. Ben Partin, who played an integral part in debunking the official report on the collapse of the Murrah building and spoke on America's inability to identify its true enemies—which could account, in part, for why the country was hit unawares on that tragic day.

- Author Gregory Douglas read a report on 9-11. See more on page 7.

At the end of the session, a question and answer series followed, where conference attendees could pose questions to the panel of experts on topics related to the Sept. 11 attack. ❖

Authentic History Voids War Propaganda

The portion of THE BARNES REVIEW's international conference focusing on "Authentic History" commenced in the late afternoon of June 14.

Following the panel discussion on the Sept. 11 terror attacks, George "Pat" Morse, who was a clerk inside the Nuremberg Tribunal, set up by the victorious allies to punish Axis leaders after their unconditional surrender, lectured on that experience.

As a personal aide to "Wild Bill" Donovan, who established the Office of Strategic Services, the progenitor of the Central Intelligence Agency, Morse was an eyewitness to many of the historically critical events in post war America.

Morse is author of America Twice Betrayed, a 376-page hardback book that details the structure of America's intelligence apparatus, which, Morse finds, cannot work effectively, and points the way for fundamental correction.

Prof. Martin Brech was scheduled to follow Morse.

As an 18-year old draftee, Brech was shipped to Germany and was a guard at one of the death camps set up by Eisenhower after the war.

Flouting the Geneva Convention and all rules of humanity, Eisenhower set up camps in Germany to hold German soldiers as "Disarmed Enemy Personnel," instead of prisoners of war. He did this to skirt the Geneva Convention.

In his book, Other Losses, James Bacque estimates that nearly a million German men died in these horrible camps from lack of food, the weather and disease.

Brech had orders to shoot to kill any prisoner who tried to accept food from German civilians, and civilians were often shot at.

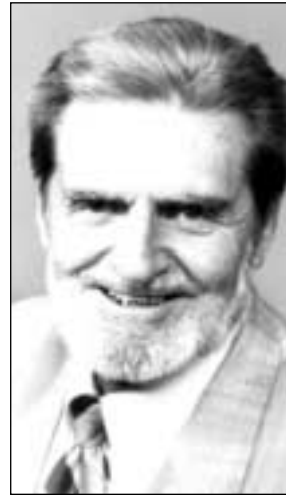

Brech, however, withdrew from the conference at the last moment, saying that his family felt that if he lectured they would suffer retaliation from their Zionist employers.

Michael McLaughlin was next on the agenda.

A Briton, McLaughlin is an outspoken critic of British and American wartime policies and, in fact, the whole war, which he claims was completely against the interests of everyone in Europe and America.

McLaughlin pointed out that the decline of Britain since 1945 has been precipitous.

Today, Britain is little better than a Third World country, and hardly European at all, dominated in every respect by international bankers and immigrants. Thousands of British families are abandoning their native country to move to Spain and other places.

As for the United States, the fruits of our "victory" should be evident to anyone concerned about the problems that have come upon us in the past 50 years.

McLaughlin also detailed many of the atrocities perpetrated against Germans after their unconditional surrender.

Hans Schmidt, a front-line German soldier serving in the Waffen SS, spoke on "The Loss of Chivalry."

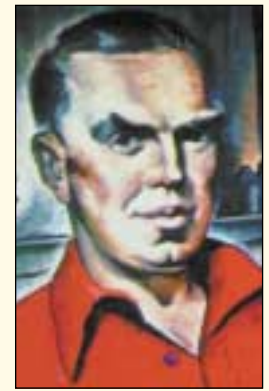

For example, America's treatment of John Walker Lindh after capture in Afghanistan, who had as much right to join the armed forces in that country as have many hundreds of Americans who joined the armed forces of Israel, at least two of which were part of the air and naval detachments which attacked the American intelligence vessel in 1967, killing 34 Americans and wounding another 160.

Schmidt wonders what will happen to Americans who fall into the clutches of Islamic armed forces in the future.

Schmidt's recently-released book *SS Panzergrenadier: A True Story of World War II is his account of the war as a German soldier and is excellent reading. ❖

Moving Tribute to Harry Elmer Barnes

Friday evening Willis A. Carto, publisher of THE BARNES REVIEW, opened the Harry Elmer Barnes Birthday Party with an eloquent toast to Barnes, the major figure in the Historical Revisionist movement. "War propaganda and hate must not be allowed to become history," said Carto, describing the struggle between the well-paid ivory tower intellectuals and those who pursue truth. Barnes, of course, has been oft-quoted as saying: "The first casualty of war is the truth." How right he was—and still is—as we look at how the world's aggressors justify their genocidal wars and manipulate and fabricate truth for their own political and financial agendas. Barnes' mission as a historian, in his own words, was: "to bring history into accord with the facts," the motto and driving mission of THE BARNES REVIEW.

FROM JAMES BACQUE . . . TWO MUST-READ BOOKS ON POST-WWII EUROPE

Surviving the War: A Fate Worse than Death for Many

Other Losses: Investigation Into the Mass Deaths of German Prisoners by James Bacque—The first edition of this controversial book, Other Losses, caused an international scandal in 1989 by revealing that almost 1 million German prisoners of war died of starvation and for lack of basic human necessities in American and French death camps after World War II. Millions of German survivors were appalled and turned the book into an international best-seller, while the U.S. and the French governments attacked Bacque for exaggeration. None, however, could explain the mass deaths of these German ex-combatants. This extended edition of Other Losses presents all the relevant new material on the deaths plus new evidence of the suppression of truth by academics, the press and governments of the West. A real blockbuster that will make you cringe at the treatment received by prisoners supposedly protected by the Geneva Convention. #127, softcover, 288 pages, $20.95.

Crimes and Mercies: The Fate of German Civilians Under Allied Occupation by James Bacque, author of Other Losses—This book fully exposes the Allies' hypocrisy concerning the Geneva Convention, genocide, racism and the starvation, persecution and cruel expulsion of over 9 million ethnic Germans at the end of World War II. Find out who planned this revenge against the German people and why, in this gripping account of the worst holocaust the Western world has ever known. Includes a series of never-before-seen photographs. #108, softcover, 288 pages, $18.95.

Real History Uncensored

THE BARNES REVIEW'S conference, June 14-16, served as a "deprogramming agent" for those victimized by the tyrannical anti-culture of American society and provided those wishing to break free from mind control quite a variety of iconoclastic writing and speaking.

The second day of The Barnes Review's Third International Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment opened with six speakers in the Revisionist movement sharing their views on a variety of topics.

THE BARNES REVIEW'S Associate Editor M. Raphael Johnson gave a talk on the corruption of academics in contemporary American life and its social implications.

The lecture attempted to both synthesize the ideas of major writers in this growing field of scholarship and to include some personal observations concerning the difficulties of presenting dissenting ideas in the "hallowed" halls of academia.

Sam Dickson, a standard on the "racialist" right in America, dealt with the relationship between ethnic homogeneity and the perseverance of a constitutional order. In other words, the existence of a constitutional political order in America is contingent on the preexistence of a sort of ethnic kinship to hold the polity together.

Such a view, while not held universally by revisionists, is gaining ground as the modern experiment with multiracialism and multiculturalism goes sour.

Tom Goodrich presented some of the most spectacular material at the gathering. This seasoned writer and researcher detailed—in gory specifics—the practices of the Indian warriors on the American plains in the late 19th century.

Goodrich, author of *Scalp Dance, a book which served as the basis for his lecture, debunked the irrational romanticization of the savage Indian tribes on the plains, where torture, environmental degradation, rape and an ingrained ethos of gratuitous violence was a way of life.

Goodrich's challenge to the anti-intellectual school of political correctness was exciting and lively, as are his books on the subject.

William Lind, a fellow at the Free Congress Foundation, spoke of the Frankfurt School, or the group of neo-Marxists whose strategy—putting it simply—consists in the cultural, rather than economic, subversion of western nations and societies.

Lind detailed their now well-known plan, as well as a simplified version of their basic theory of the state, society and the human being.

Lind's fundamental point seemed to be that this school of thought, developing in the 1920s among several Jewish writers and scholars, is responsible for our present battle against political correctness, leftism and a warmed-over Marxism on our campuses and in our collective life as a people.

Lind was the inspiration for the preparation of the informational supplement to American Free Press, *Cultural Communism: The Vivisection of America. Of course, Lind's lecture, as well as all other lectures, will be printed in THE BARNES REVIEW.

E. Michael Jones, Ph.D. a globally recognized authority on the Sexual Revolution and the ideology that created it, gave a stunning lecture on the relationship between the sexual revolution and the modern Enlightenment inspired experiment in social control.

Jones differed from Dickson, denying that an "ethnic homogeneity" ever existed. Instead, Jones claimed that the American tradition is based rather on a European ethnic pluralism.

Jones went on to detail his ideas on the fact that the sexual revolution—specifically in the legalization of contraception—was a form of warfare against Catholics who were simply outbreeding the WASP ruling class and those loyal to them.

Further, Jones criticized Lind in saying that the Frankfurt school did not "invade America," but merely found a home in a society that had already been corrupted, thereby becoming the intellectual lapdogs of the national ruling elite. Jones' talk was greeted with a standing ovation.

Well-known preterist theologian John Anderson was next to speak.

Preterism is the conviction that the prophecies in the books of Revelations, Daniel and elsewhere have been fulfilled, and that the lot of the true Christian is to try and live by the words of Christ, not by his innumerable interpreters or the Old Testament.

For example, Anderson stands squarely opposed to the phalanx of extremely wealthy contemporary television personalities and booksellers who have made a very profitable business out of predicting nonsense, such as the allegedly impending "Battle of Armageddon," and the false notion that a mini-state artificially called "Israel" is the same as that nation which was destroyed some 3,000 years ago.

Anderson finds it droll that descendants of Russian Khazars are now posing as Jews of the Bible.

The title of Anderson's lecture was "The Revision of Christianity," but perhaps should have been "The Revision of Scofield."

The influence of Cyrus Scofield over the last 100 years, says Anderson, has twisted Christianity into an unrecognizable "religion" of hatred for anyone who does not go along with Scofield's views based on the Old Testament. It is time for Christians to act like Christians, not executioners of people disliked by the leaders of a mini-state falsely called Israel.

Anderson has produced two informative videos on the subject, The Last Days and The Second Coming on Trial.

Apocalyptic Profiteers

Is it possible that Jerry Falwell, Pat Robertson, Hal Lindsey, Tim LaHaye, Jack Van Impe and all of the famed prophecy experts are mistaken and that we are not really living in "the last days"? Is it possible modern-day end-time believers are dead wrong and the Biblical "last days" have already occurred? Is it possible Biblical "Israel" is not the physical land in the Middle East, but instead, a spiritual kingdom into which all Bible-believing Christians have entered? Have Christians been led astray by the "last days" teachings of latter-day would-be prophets? Is there a secret (anti-Christian) hidden agenda behind the "end times" philosophy? Is the media trying to stampede Christians into supporting a Godless "New World Order"?

Two videos by preterist theologian John Anderson, The Last Days and The Second Coming on Trial feature a host of Bible-believing Christian scholars (leaders in the field of "preterist" theology) who present a perspective that challenges the "big name" TV ministers head on. Order your copies by referring to the footnote at right.

The establishment wants Christians to sit back, forget about what Christ taught and the desperate state of affairs in America and await the end of the world. This is why Time promotes the Armageddon poison, giving strong approval to end-times salesman like Tim LaHaye, who has made many millions of dollars bilking gullible Christians out of their hard-earned money to buy 35 million misleading books he has written.

Left, profiteer Tim LaHaye. If this really is the end of the world, why isn't LaHaye giving his books away free? Above, the Time cover of July 1, 2002 promoting Armageddon.

A REPORT ON HOLOCAUST REVISIONISM

Persecuted Historians Take the Stage

A panel of speakers discussed the latest findings in the holocaust revisionist movement in a series of lectures titled "Report on Holocaust Revisionism."

Following a report by TBR contributor Michael Collins Piper on the recent Revisionist conference co-sponsored by TBR in Russia earlier this year, Swiss historian Juergen Graf, who chaired the Moscow conference on TBR's behalf—working in conjunction with Dr. Oleg Platonov, editor of the Encyclopedia of Russian Civilization—presented a partial translation of the Russian scholar's speech.

Platonov would have delivered the speech in Washington himself had he not been barred from entering the United States by the State Department and the U.S. embassy in Moscow after prodding by Zionist groups.

Platonov's address was entitled "The Role of Zionism in Modern Russian History."

For his taking notice of the little-known role of Zionism in Russian history, Platonov has been added to a list of "undesirable aliens" to be denied admittance into the United States.

Graf also presented his own paper, addressing the question, "Was Treblinka a 'Death Camp'?", based on his own recent research in European archives. The answer, he said, was "no," and he provided a mountain of scientific evidence to support his claim. On the other hand, the Holocaust lobby has been caught scrambling to provide any evidence whatsoever that Treblinka was used as a killing center for Jews during World War II. This obviously flies in the face of what so many of us have been taught in the American public school system.

Russ Granata, a retired educator widely respected by Revisionists worldwide, reported on new research by Italy's Carlo Mattogno who has exploded a "new" Holocaust claim—that a Polish farmhouse (now called "Bunker 1") was used as a "gas chamber" at Auschwitz.

Australia's eloquent Dr. Fredrick Toben, founder of the Adelaide Institute, described the intrigue of the "thought police" Down Under, and noted how they have intensified their efforts against Revisionists in the so-called "democracies" of Europe.

Toben has been the focus of the Australian thought police ever since publishing scientific reports debunking the severity of the Holocaust. Toben also updated listeners on his own persecution. Australian authorities have requested Toben to sign a document renouncing his scientific findings and promising never to publish any works on the Holocaust. He expects jail time if he refuses their "request." ❖

Proof Vikings Were Here 130 Years Before Columbus

The TBR conference again entered the field of pre-history, in which THE BARNES REVIEW magazine excels.

Last year's TBR conference featured Fred Rydholm and his amazing revelations about the ancient copper miners of Michigan—evidence that Europeans were mining copper in North America and transporting it back to Europe to fuel the copper and bronze ages.

This year, Dr. Richard Nielsen and Scott Wolter lectured on the Kensington Runestone, found by Olaf Ohman on his farm near Kensington, Minn. in 1898.

The mysterious stone, composed of graywacke, measures 31 inches long, 16 inches wide and six inches thick. It weighs 202 pounds.

At first considered to be a fake by the "experts," its authenticity can no longer be doubted.

Wolter is an archaeo-geologist educated at the University of Minnesota. His scientific studies, conducted through an electron microscope, have shown that the Kensington Runestone was buried for 200 years before it was discovered by Ohman, making the chance that it was a forgery next to impossible.

Nielsen is a runologist and linguist who specializes in Scandinavian languages. He answered many of the linguistic concerns of skeptics by referring back to ancient Norse writings, demonstrating that all of the words and punctuation marks other scholars have denied existed in 1630 (when the runestone is purported to have been created) did in fact exist. His slide show and comparison of the actual runes was highly convincing.

All criticisms of the stone have now been answered and it must be accepted by history as one of the most important historical finds in North America.

Nielsen, after 14 years of extensive study, released the latest, most authoritative translation to date:

8 Goths and 202 Northmen are on acquisition business from Vinland far to the west we had an encampment by 2 shelters one day's time north from this stone We were fishing one day. After we came home I found 10 men red from blood and death Hail Mary deliver from evil.

The following lines appear on the edge:

"I have 10 man by the sea to attend to our ship ten+4 days' journey from this wealth. Year of Christ thousand + 3 hundred + 6 tens + 2"

At Cormorant Lake are three large boulders with triangular drilled holes. The triangular holes are thought by scholars to be for the purpose of mooring boats in the same way as it was done along the coast of Norway in the 14th century. Additionally, these mooring stones are in no way unusual in North America. The rocks on Cormorant Lake have since become known as the "Anchor Rocks." Similar "mooring" rocks were discovered by H.R. Holand near where the stone was found.

The "sea" referred to on the place where the ships were left is believed by some to have been Hudson Bay. To reach Nelson Lake, the party would have sailed down the Nelson River to Lake Winnipeg, then taken the Red River to the north and thence to Cormorant Lake. Other researchers believe they may have come via one of the Great Lakes as the translation of "sea" may have meant to the Norse any body of water large enough to make waves.

Furthermore, a Scandinavian firesteel was found in the vicinity of the route the party must have taken to reach Kensington, Minn., the place where a simple Scandinavian country farmer uncovered one of the greatest mysteries of North America. ❖

THE TBR CONFERENCE BANQUET

Great Food, Great Guests, & More Authentic History

Conference attendees took part in a banquet sponsored by THE BARNES REVIEW celebrating free speech and the First Amendment in America.

At the "First Amendment Banquet"—hosted by Willis A. Carto, TBR's publisher—Rev. Peter Leach-Lewis of the Universal Church provided an inspiring invocation.

Leach-Lewis also surprised the audience by presenting—on behalf of the Universal Church—a number of awards to a variety of individuals present honoring their work on behalf of American sovereignty and freedom.

The opening address at the banquet, delivered by radio broadcaster and Christian evangelist Dale Crowley, Jr., examined "The Christian Origins of the First Amendment."

A loyal friend of TBR, Crowley affirmed that America is indeed a nation founded on Christian principles.

The concluding banquet address came from Canadian author and freedom of speech advocate Paul Fromm.

A fervent critic of the "thought police" in his own country—where the right to freedom of speech is under heavy fire—Fromm discussed "Freedom of Speech in Cyberspace," warning about attempts to censor the Internet.

Young populist musician Paul Topete—best known as the lead singer in the band "Poker Face"—provided entertainment prior to the banquet.

JOHN ANDERSON

DALE CROWLEY JR.

Leach-Lewis: Don't Kill the Messenger

The pastor who gave the invocation and benediction at the conference became an America-first advocate by way of Britain, Rhodesia and Washington

The Rev. Peter Leach-Lewis, head of the Universal Church, became a strong supporter of the populist institution Liberty Lobby when he came to Washington from Rhodesia in 1964, having been born and educated in England.

At that time, Liberty Lobby and its Liberty Letter, which evolved in 1975 into The Spotlight, was bringing real news to the American people about the tragedy confronting Rhodesia—now Zimbabwe.

Leach-Lewis, from his first-hand experience as a tobacco farmer in Rhodesia, helped spread the truth. So did his father, William Leach-Lewis, who joined the staff at Liberty Lobby.

What the mainstream was hiding—but Liberty Lobby was exposing—was the fact that the so-called five "front line" African nations supporting the revolt against apartheid by Rhodesia's blacks were communists, supported by the then-Soviet Union.

The public was also being warned that surrender to the communists would result in a white bloodbath and desperate poverty in a nation that was beautiful, serene and prosperous.

The mainstream media called the messengers "racist."

Sadly, history proved the messengers correct—as it did throughout Liberty Lobby's nearly half-century of fighting for truth. White farmers under communist

President Robert Mugabe were slaughtered, along with their black farmhands, and their lands given to blacks sympathetic to the ruthless, corrupt leader. Now, white farmers are forbidden to farm. The result is widespread starvation and poverty across the country.

"I'm a solid Christian, but not of the Thomas Road Baptist Church type," Leach-Lewis said. He was referring to the church of Jerry Falwell, who preaches that "Christians" must put the interests of Israel ahead of those of the United States.

Leach-Lewis strongly opposes those who interpret the Bible as requiring Christians to put the welfare of any nation ahead of their own.

"I am so strong a supporter of this country," he said. He became a proud American citizen in 1972.

SUNDAY MORNING SESSION WRAPS UP CONFERENCE

Populism, Nationalism & the Middle East

The final day of THE BARNES REVIEW'S historical conference focused on the philosophies of populism and nationalism, relating how an internationalist agenda pressed on the United States has brought this once great country to its knees.

On Sunday June 16, the introductory speaker was Kenneth J. Schmidt, a renowned nationalist activist from New Jersey. His purpose was to bring the audience up to speed on the current state of nationalist electoral politics in Europe.

A very popular speaker at the convention, Schmidt declared that the progress of nationalism in American life is a revolutionary idea, not one that can be fit into a mere "patriotic" or "conservative" context.

Conservative capitalism is the tool of the globalist elite, and must be rejected by true revolutionary patriots. His speech was regularly interrupted by thunderous applause from the conference attendees.

Author and international journalist Nita Renfrew dealt with her personal experience in the Middle East, both as a young leftist idealist in the 1960s and later as a seasoned writer.

Renfrew rejects Israel's claims as being the "victim of terrorism." She provided some examples of Israel's own brand of terror.

Renfrew's mainstream credentials are indisputable, and her rejection of the Israel-first movement among journalists is a view that is no longer relegated to the fringe.

Dr. Harrell Rhome, one of the most underrated Revisionists currently active, provided a powerful lecture on the difficulties of modern fundamentalist Islam.

Though Dr. Rhome is unabashedly anti-Zionist, he is also suspicious of the political theology of militant Islam, which, he claims, is a rather recent product of 18th century Saudi Arabia.

Through publications such as the Eagle Newsletter and the Revisionist Observer, Dr. Rhome has been a consistent supporter of both THE BARNES REVIEW and AFP.

The agenda itself, only partially described in these pages, was an excellent substitute for what normally passes as a college education in America. ❖

New Movie Premiere Exposes Israeli Murders

Survivors of the USS Liberty have appealed to President Bush for an investigation into Israel's deliberate attack of June 8, 1967 that left 34 Americans dead.

Even as the documentary Loss of Liberty was having its world premiere viewing at the Third International Conference on Authentic History and the First Amendment, survivors of the USS Liberty attack were appealing to the president for an honest investigation.

The film, 25 years in production, includes testimony by Adm. Arleigh Burke and Adm. Thomas Moorer. Moorer is a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Both have insisted, from the outset, that the attack was deliberate and the government was covering up.

During the premiere, a dynamic survivor of the attack, Phillip F. Tourney, gave a first-hand account of the attack, in which he was wounded.

Tourney is president of the USS Liberty Veterans Association, which is devoted to disclosure of the unprovoked attack. ❖

Gregory Douglas is not the first investigator to accuse the CIA of the assassination of John F. Kennedy, but here he offers evidence from official files to document the charge.

NEW—On Francis Parker Yockey . . .

Dreamer of the Day: Francis Parker Yockey and the Post-War Fascist International—by Kevin Coogan. The name "Francis Parker Yockey" is probably known today to only several thousand of Americans at best. They know only that he was the author of a book called Imperium. Coogan's book is a fascinating survey of Yockey's wide-ranging career and of the colorful array of individuals in both the American "right" and "left" who intersected with Yockey during his heyday. Coogan, a liberal writer, is not sympathetic to Yockey or his milieu. Nonetheless he studied his subject closely and relied on a wide-ranging assembly of sources from all philosophical points of view to craft this most fascinating volume. Item #245, softcover, 644 pages, $19.95.

Josef Stalin Planned Extermination of Europe . . .

Stalin's War of Extermination 1941-1945, by Joachim Hoffmann. Planning, Realization and Documentation, the subtitle of the book, covers Stalin's plan for a World Revolution by conquering Europe in a war of extermination. The Germany Army did everything in its power to stifle these plans and we all know the final disaster that befell Germany. When published in Germany in 1995, the book became a bestseller. One newspaper, the Berliner Morgenpost, stated it succinctly when writing, "Stalin conceived and accomplished his war against the German Reich as an extermination war of conquest. To this end, Hoffmann furnishes overwhelming data from German and Soviet archives." #282, hardback, 415 pages, $39.95.
